1. Claims 1-24 are presented for examination.

2. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

3. Claimss6 and 8 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. Applicant's disclosure set forth:

Further, an efficiency check could be added to the processes shown in FIGS. 2 and 3. One reason to perform an efficiency check to determine whether a pre-determined portion of a document should be re-rendered or printed using cache data, is because the difference in the time it takes to transfer and re-render the data would vary compared to accessing the cached data. In other words, sometimes re-rendering would be more efficient and sometimes using cached data would be more efficient.

No mention of any of the factors set forth in claims 6 and 8.

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 1,2,3, 9,10,12,13, 21-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Stevenson et al. 6,819,455 in view of Carpentier et al. (2005/0172124).

Stevenson et al. taught the invention substantially as claimed the invention (claim 1,2 and 21) as claimed including a method for executing a request to print said "print portion" (col. 3, lines 26-35); generating a "print portion" uniqueness identifier in a host computer, said "print portion" uniqueness identifier specifically referring to and for identifying said "print portion" (col. 3, lines 36-50); comparing said "print portion" uniqueness identifier to a list of uniqueness identifiers stored in memory (col. 1, lines 62-67, col. 3, lines 52-64); printing said "print portion" using previously rendered data stored in a memory location referenced by said list of uniqueness identifiers if said "print portion" uniqueness identifier is found in said list of uniqueness identifiers (col. 3, lines 52-64); and storing said "print portion" uniqueness identifier and a reference to data stored in memory pertaining to said "print portion" in said list of uniqueness identifiers if said "print portion" uniqueness identifier is not found in said list of uniqueness identifiers (col. 4, lines 12-25).

Stevenson did not expressly teach calculating a uniqueness identifier, Carpentier et al. taught calculating a uniqueness identifier (encrypting File name) (para. 016, abstract) it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to combine these references as it would allow the files as taught by Stevenson et al. to be safely stored or transferred within a network and is uniquely identifiable by its IUI, as expressly taught by Carpentier et al.

As to claim 3, Stevenson et al. taught printing said "print portion" printing an entire print job (col. 3, lines 52-64).

As to claims 9, 12, and 22, Stevenson et al. taught comparing said "print portion" uniqueness identifier to a list of uniqueness identifiers stored in memory further comprising the step of comparing said "print portion" uniqueness identifier to a list of uniqueness identifiers stored in memory in a printer (col. 3, lines 37-50).

As to claim 10, 13, and 23, Stevenson et al. taught transferring said "print portion" uniqueness identifier from said host computer to said printer (col. 3, lines 37-50).

Claims 4, 5, 7, 8, 11, 14, 15-20, and 24 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Stevenson et al. (6,819,455) and Carpentier et al. (2005/0172124) as applied to claims 1,2,3,, 9,10, 12,13, 21-23 above, and further in view of Mastie et al. (6,498,656).

As to claims 11, 14 and 24, Stevenson et al. in combination with Carpentier et al. did not teach transferring all or part of said "print portion" from said host computer to said printer if said "print portion" uniqueness identifier is not found in said list of uniqueness identifiers. Mastie et al. suggest the modification as it would reduce network traffic (col. 6, line 49- col. 7, line 11).

As to claims 4, 5, 7, and 15-20, Stevenson et al. did not expressly teach taught printing said "print portion" printing a portion of an entire print job. Mastie et al. suggest the modification, segmenting print jobs into multiple files (col. 6, lines 49-57).

Claims 5 and 7 are multiple file version of claims 1,2, and 21 are rejected for the reason set forth in the rejections set forth in the rejection of claims 4 and 1,2, and 21.

Claims 15 and 18 are multiple file version of claims 9, 12 and 22 and are rejected for the reason set forth in the rejections set forth in the rejection of claims 4 and 9,12 and 22.

Claims 16 and 19 are multiple file version of claims 10, 13 and 23 and are rejected for the reason set forth in the rejections set forth in the rejection of claims 4 and 10,13 and 23.

Claims 16 and 20 are multiple file version of claims 11, 14 and 24 and are rejected for the reason set forth in the rejections set forth in the rejection of claims 4 and 11,13 and 24.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
